Laura's background in Sustainable Urbanism has provided her with extensive knowledge on how to implement sustainability strategies within the built environment.

Laura combines her knowledge of sustainable place-making, with an appreciation of the planning process to develop clear goals which are unique to each project.

Laura is continuing to expand her role as a Sustainability Consultant by working closely on a range of development projects, focussing on sustainability appraisal techniques, including BREEAM assessments for a mix of refurbishment and new build projects.

She has provided advice on complex and large-scale regeneration projects, which involve a mix of uses. She applies her knowledge of BREEAM and other industry standards to deliver sustainability goals which deliver benefits for clients and future building users.

Laura's clear communication skills enables her to work effectively within design teams to consider and embed sustainability measures within projects.
